According to the Lesotho Demographic Health Survey (DHS) 2014, Lesotho faces one of the highest rates of maternal mortality of about 1024 deaths, and the second largest prevalence of HIV in the world, with women continuing to take the weight of the epidemic. The President of the National Women's Saude Council, Caucus, said Mrs. Mathepe Ramakoe with regard to the celebration of the International Action Day for the Saude da Women, during the Which has stated that the day reminds women's parliamentary women of their biggest role to speak for the protection of sexual and reproductive rights (SRH) of women of Lesotho. It is an opportunity to call once again the attention for what matters most. Today, as many parts of the world, we demonstrate our political will and commitment to ensure that human rights violations against women are put in practice, "Makoe told Mrs. Makoe. She commented that the conviction of parliamentarian women is that women have the right to decide for themselves about what to do with their bodies, including the decision to have or not a baby, decide who they want or do not want to have sexual interaction with, as well as to be able to enjoy their sexual and reproductive health rights freely without any coercion, violence and discrimination. With the teen pregnancy also reported to be 24 percent, DHS 2014 reports that 42 percent of women reported at least one challenge in access to health care, while sexual violence and GBV particularly addressed Women are also reported between the highest forms of abuse. DHS also claims that adolescent women who prefer to delay a pregnancy often can not access modern contraceptives, while other women lose their lives due to the small care given during pregnancy and childbirth. Based on the given context, Mrs. Ramakoe, therefore, said that the International Day of Action for Women's Saude's Sensitizes Women your decision-making vulnerability Therefore, sexual issues are not able to protect themselves from sexually transmitted infections and HIV. It stressed, therefore, that it remains their responsibility, as Members of the European Parliament, to empower all women, since they deserve not only access to contraceptives, including contraception from emergency, but also the need to give birth in a safe environment where they are assisted by qualified birth workers, to say that the unavailability and access to sexual and reproductive health services to women is a violation of their constitutional right. Once again, she noted that Members of the European Parliament remain committed to promoting the HRS of lesotho women through their functions of representatives of representation, drafting of laws, supervision and budget allocation, fulfilling their commitment, among other things: Ensure that HRS programmes are adequately funded and effectively implemented, advocate the presenting of appropriate laws to Parliament and hold the government accountable for the domestication of international protocols and other frameworks that facilitate greater access to sexual and reproductive health services for women. The 2018 commemoration marks thirty years of struggle and activism when women who defend abah's rights and activists are re-launching the International Day of Education for Women which was on May 28 1987, during the Fourth International Women's Conference of Health in the Costa, proposed to be celebrated as a means of talking about SRHR issues faced by women and girls around the world.
