Angularjs templatecache from file

HTML charger: Export HTML as a string. - // Request ('./ Models') Remove the line plugin line from WebPack.prod.js: - {from: 'App /  / *. Html', Context: 'Public'}, // todo : You need to find the models cache with WebPack Wrapping Upà €™ We have removed an AngularJS $ templatecache service uniquely with WebPack and moved some HTML fragments in the components. What is $ Templatecache in AngularJS? It is disconnected in another card or window. Try again later. How it works: When requesting a model, AngularJS checks the $ Templatecache service first. Because the HTML charger return the HTML string, you need to use the template properties instead of Templateurl which includes a file path. You want to use $ templatecache for quick recovery. Initially I decided to use $ Templatecache because this à €™ is what the application was doing before WebPack. Now that WebPack is placed as the construction process and à €™ We are getting tons of bug reports, à €™ time to tie free ends. If à €™ find, excellent, à €™ saved a request to the server. From there, it can be recovered quickly on subsequent calls. À €™ A " run that action right now. This is fine five years ago, but now à €™ better to use angularjs components (if you have yet to use angularjs: d) index.html (or index.pug in my case) header.component.js Const Module = Angle.Module ("App.Header"); module.component ("MyHeader", {Associations: {}}, Controller: "HeaderController", Model: Require ("./ MyHeader.html"))); À €™ Index file, Benefit use of " using a valid HTML code, as the HTML charger may cause errors in case of problems.
