Bibliography Notes on Smoker/Non-smoker study:
A Distillation
By
Hafford H. Fairchild
October 8, 2012

Note to students: This is a step in the "Fairchild Method" for writing a review of literature. After highlighting the annotated bib, I typed up these notes from the highlights. Note that I keep track of author and year information, as this is REQUIRED for the actual writing of the review.

5-8 grade "cool" social intell.
Aloise-Young, Hennigan (1996): 5th - 8th grades rated selves and smokers on 9 dimensions (coolness, sociability, intelligence...). Similarity between self & smoker stereotype increased with age. "Self consistency" increasingly important from 5th to 8th grade. "...self-enhancement motivations emerged for the cool trait for female & non-Hispanic White 5s."

SMOKER STEREOTYPE
Aloise-Young, Hennigan & Graham (1996): Examined 1,222 non-smoking 5th - 8th graders. Those who were similar to smoker stereotype (cool, sociability & intelligence) were 2x more likely to start smoking.

Beebe, Buback, McGlone & Dinoff (1972): who do smokers give a free cigarette to? Order: Factory workers, conservative college students, hippies. Attitudes toward these groups in same order.

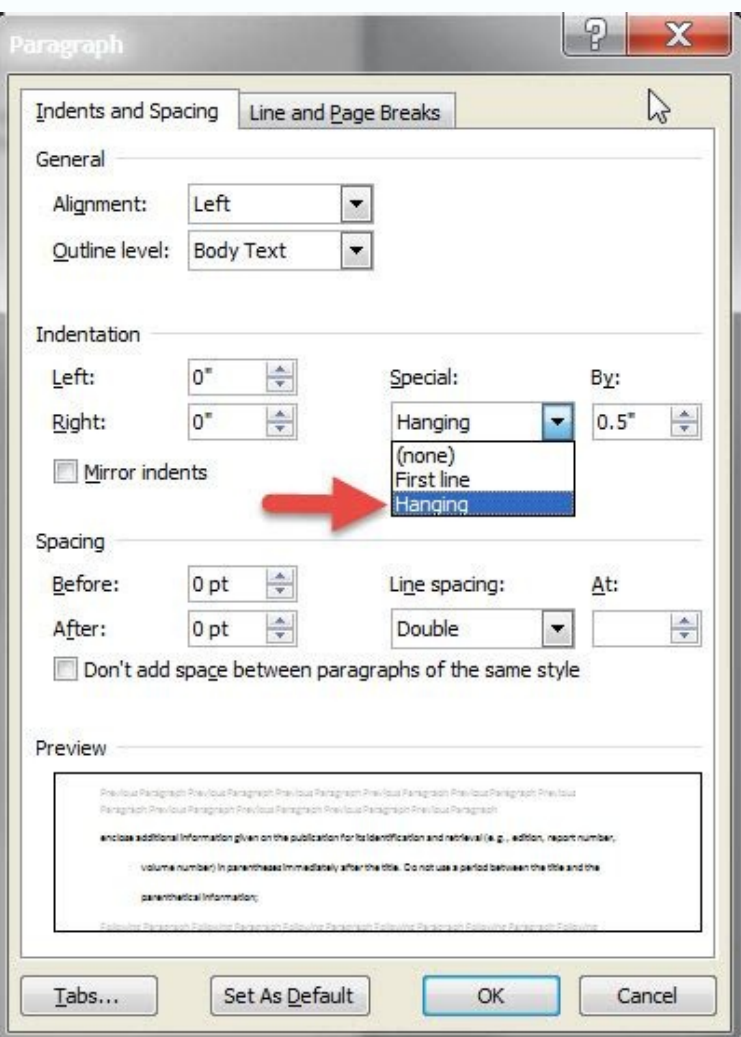

ATTRACTIVE SEX VS MATH
Beech & Whittaker (2001): Rating of female smokers & non-smokers (with or without glasses). Not smoking - most attractive. Smokers as more "sexually interested", less intelligent. However, SMOKERS rated smokers as more attractive. Non-smokers rated smokers less attractive & less intelligent. No gender differences.

ATTITUDE TOWARD PREGNANT WOMEN
Bull, Burke, Walsh & Whitehead (2007): attitudes toward pregnant women who smoke. Considerable stigma & negative social attitudes, especially among non-smokers. More tolerance among SES deprived areas. Conducted in UK

gender diff
Callison, Karrh, & Zillmann (2002): 45 male & 72 female college 5s rated character traits of men and women who smoked cigars, cigarettes or not smoking. Men & women evaluators differed: smokers as less appealing. for men, cigar smokers were even less appealing. Women saw cigar smokers as more confident and secure.

SEEK COOL SMOKING
Carpenter, Garrett-Mayer, Vitoc, Cartmell, Biggers & Alberg (2009): Adolescents who smoked viewed smokers as having more friends, were "cool" and smoking is safe. Less likely to see addictions. "Even minimal levels of cigarette use are associated with favorable views of smoking."

attentional bias
Carter, Donovan, Weller & Jalleh (2007): Magazine imagery (smoking & non-smoking), photographs. Smokers made more mention of smoking imagery, more urge to smoke. Female smokers more attracted to smokers than non-smokers (opposite true for non-smokers). "Incidental positive smoking imagery in magazines can generate the same sorts of consumer effects attributed to advertising..."

WHAT IS AN ANNOTATED BIBLIOGRAPHY?

An annotated bibliography is a list of citations to books, articles, and documents. Each citation is followed by a brief (usually about 150 words, 4-6 sentences) descriptive and evaluative paragraph, the annotation. The purpose of the annotation is to inform the reader of the relevance, accuracy, and quality of the sources cited. Annotations may include some or all of the following information:

- Main focus or purpose of the work
- Intended audience for the work
- Usefulness or relevance to your research topic (or why it did not meet your expectations)
- Special features of the work that were unique or helpful
- Background and credibility of the author
- Conclusions or observations reached by the author
- Conclusions or observations reached by you.

ANNOTATIONS vs. ABSTRACTS

Abstracts are the purely descriptive summaries often found at the beginning of scholarly journal articles or in periodical indexes. Annotations are descriptive and critical; they expose the author's point of view, clarity and appropriateness of expression, and authority.

Waltz, Linda J., Frances Kober Goldscheider, and Christina Wittberger. "Nonfamily Living and the Erosion of Traditional Family Orientations Among Young Adults." American Sociological Review 51.4 (1986): 541-554. Print.

The authors, researchers at the Rand Corporation and Brown University, use data from the National Longitudinal Survey of Young Women and Young Men to test their hypothesis that nonfamily living by young adults alters their attitudes, values, plans, and expectations, moving them away from their belief in traditional sex roles. They find their hypothesis strongly supported in young females, while the effects were fewer in studies of young males. Increasing the time away from parents before marrying increased

Bozarth, M.A. (1983). Opiate reward mechanisms mapped by intracranial self-administration. In J.E. Smith and J.D. Lane (eds.), Neurobiology of Opiate Reward Processes (pp. 331-339). Amsterdam: Elsevier/North Holland Biomedical Press. [This is an example of an article published in a book.]

This book chapter reviews data suggesting that the ventral tegmental area is critically involved in opiate reward. In addition it presents the first of several theoretical reviews by the author suggesting that opiate and psychomotor stimulant reinforcement involves activation of the same dopaminergic substrate. (By the mid-1980s the notion that different addictive drugs might share a common reward substrate would become paradigmatic for the study of drug reinforcement and addiction.) Control procedures and other methodological issues for conducting intracranial self-administration studies are also discussed.

Bozarth, M.A. (1987). (ed.) Methods of Assessing the Reinforcing Properties of Abused Drugs. New York: Springer-Verlag. [This is an example of a book citation.]

This book provides the definitive compendium of the experimental methods used to study drug reinforcement. Thirty chapters written by leading experts in each technique provides synopses of the experimental procedures. Both preclinical and clinical methods are presented, grouped by general approach (e.g., preclinical reinforcement studies, preclinical conditioning methods, clinical subjective-effects measures, clinical self-administration procedures). Most chapters present an overview and review of an experimental method, while some chapters provide original experimental data illustrating specific applications of a technique.
