About me

Write a brief summary about your background, personality, lifestyle and interests. Here is a sample:
Originally from Hyderabad, I have been living in Chennai for over 10 years. I am 6 feet tall and moderately built. My fitness obsession helps me in keeping my body fat at bay :)

My job as a software engineer has made me a patient man and improved my negotiation skills! My job also keeps me on my toes, as I am always trying to learn new skills to keep pace with the changing technology landscape. I especially value humor, ability to laugh at yourself, being able to communicate, respect for culture, staying healthy, and the freedom to think out of the box.

Expectations

Write a brief summary about your expectations. Here is a sample: I am looking for a girl with a killer smile and a spark in her eyes. I am tall, so you will have to be at least 5.5 feet in height.

My future wife should enjoy traveling with me as I follow the Indian cricket team worldwide! It goes without saying that you should know the difference between pain and guilty. My prospective wife should be a nature lover and enjoy living in a secluded home that is far removed from the haste and bustle of the city.

Download our rich design marriage biodata word format and dupe-paste these pieces of information just for free. A good biodata should include a name, age, date of birth, gender, nationality, religion, family details, profession, and education. Choose a simple and attractive template. A marriage biodata contains brief information about any person who intends to get married. A marriage biodata usually contains information such as name, age, date of birth, religion, gotra, education, job details, profession of parents, siblings' details, and hobbies. Most people also attach horoscope with their biodata, income, and partner expectations. Importance of writing a good Marriage Resume Candidly speaking the marriage biodata should be prepared carefully. Its important decision of your life and you are choosing the life partner of this basis. Not only the partners but families also come get connected with this relationship. Hence, it's advisable to make your marriage biodata clear, attractive, and simple. By reading your resume one should make out what kind of partner you are looking for and what are your expectations. Remember to be honest while writing your marriage biodata. Do not use flattering words just to attract anyone. Be concise and authentic while writing and sharing the marriage biodata resume. Here is the information which you can include while preparing your marriage biodata - Photograph In most of the cases people tend to look at your photo before reading further details. If your photo is missing it might look like incomplete marriage biodata. Hence, it is necessary to put good image of yourself. Make sure use the coloured one and the recent pic. Dress yourself in appropriate attire for getting picture clicked for marriage biodata. Do not try to edit or put any filters in your photo. Be as you are. Personal And Professional Details After looking at your picture next step is writing about your personal details which includes your name, date of birth, and other details. This section will be about you only which will state your education background, your job details or designation. In marriage biodata you should also mention from where have you done your schooling its matter of importance indeed. The reputed university name or school you should mention while writing about your education. It can give an understanding about your knowledge and medium of studying. If mentioning about your occupation or job status you write about the company, designation, and place of posting. Also, how many years of experience you have that also counts. Few people also mention salary on their marriage biodata. One also mentions about hobbies and interests in marriage biodata. It may be any sports, cooking, painting, music, or singing. It shows how much interest do you show in other activities. One can know you more when you mention your hobbies and passion. And you may edit or delete the sub-heads which suits your personal details and the needs. More or less marriage biodata is mirror of what you are, the section should describe you adequately. The heading could be like this- Full Name Birth date Birth time Birth place Height Gotra Complexion Education Occupation Hobbies/interests Family Details Family particulars are also important when writing marriage biodata. The complete information needs to be given of siblings with their spouse's name and occupation of married. You can start with the name of your Father and his occupation, Mother's name and her occupation, followed by names brother's and sister's. Mention the eldest sibling first followed by younger ones. Most people also share the details of first cousin like Uncle etc. But it all depends on you, what you want to include and what not. Family structure can be mention joint or nuclear one. In addition to that Maternal family name and place must always be part of your marriage biodata. The heads may be written like this - Name of Father and Mother Father's Occupation Siblings' details (Married or Unmarried) Uncle Details (Any other relatives if you need to mention) Maternal Family Name and Place Contact Details After writing professional and personal details mention the permanent address and contact number to contact you for further process. There you have it!Free Biodata Format for a JobFree Biodata Format for Marriage!What is the Difference Between a Resume, CV, and Biodata?Let's kick off with the similarities.A resume, CV, and biodata are documents that introduce you to your prospective employer, and give them your contact details. They all reveal something about your experience, skills, and education.Here are some key differences between a resume, CV, and biodata:Biodata is a document that focuses on your personal information: date of birth, gender, religion, race, nationality, place of residence, marital status, parents' names, contact details, current position, salary, etc. It may also contain a brief opening statement, your education, and experience in chronological order.In some South Asian countries (e.g. India, Bangladesh) it is used in the place of a resume. A kind of biodata form may be required when applying for government, or defence positions. Plus, it's widely used for matrimonial purposes in South Asia. Resume is a short document (1 or 2 pages) used to apply for jobs. It gives future employers a brief overview of your work history. The word resume is originally a French word for "sum up." Your resume focuses on and sums up your job-related accomplishments and experience.CV (or Curriculum Vitae, Latin for "course of life") is the alternative to a resume. It is a record of your academic and professional achievements. CVs are often longer than resumes, go more into detail, and their length depends on the applicant's experience. In the US, CVs are common when applying for academic jobs, research positions, grants, or scholarships. Elsewhere around the globe, a CV is basically a resume.And one more thing:Since the term biodata covers a very broad spectrum of meanings, the look of the biodata formats you come across online may vary hugely.From formal-looking documents with tables, to lists of assessment questions, to indian resume formats, to marriage resumes.This guide focuses on the last two types of biodata format:A biodata format for job applicants/indian resume format, and a biodata format for marriage for a girl and a boy.Would you'd like to probe the differences between resumes and CVs a little further? Head straight to our guide: CV vs. Resume: What is the Difference? When to Use Which (Examples)2What to Include in a Biodata Format for a Job? Let's face it:Resume format may turn out to be a non-issue.That's because some employers might already have their own biodata format, which you just need to fill in.But that's not always the case.And this is exactly when our simple and easy biodata format in MS Word comes in handy!Here's a look at what your biodata format for a job applicant may look like.Biodata Format—PDF SampleLet's have a look at what you may want to include in a successful biodata format for employment.3How to Write a Biodata Format to Get What You WantLet's take it from the top.1. Start off with an Objective or SummaryThis is what appears at the very top of your biodata format.Think of this section in terms of a movie trailer:If you show the good stuff, the recruiter will crave to see more!In general, the opening statements fall into 2 basic categories: an objective or summary.Here are the key differences:An objective consists of 2-3 sentences that say why you are a good fit for the position. This kind of opening statement is useful for freshers and those whose experience is limited.Make sure your objective presents your strong traits, blends in experience, and shows how you can benefit the company.A summary also consists of a couple of sentences, but it gives the employer some insight into your experience that matches their requirements.To write a winning biodata summary, make sure it:Focuses on your track-record.Specifies your education and/or experience.Shows your achievement(s).Uses numbers to quantify what's possible.If you really want your biodata format to stand out, including the opening statement may turn out to be a real game-changer.If you're not sure how to write your opening statement, jump right into one of our guides: 20+ Resume Objective Examples - Use Them On Your Resume (Tips) and Professional Resume Summary: 30 Examples of Statements [+How-To]2. Include Personal InformationIn contrast to the previous section, this one doesn't leave much room for creativity.But this is not to say you can just ignore it!No.Make sure to include all the relevant information. Double-check the job posting to see if there are any specific requirements for you to follow.Here's a list of ideas of what you may want to include in your biodata personal information section:current position,phone number,email address,contact details,place of residence,postal address,date of birth,nationality,marital status,parents' names,gender,religion,height,complexion,race,salary,hobbies,interests,strengths,character traits.While some of these might be required by the employer (contact details, place of residence, phone number), other items on the list may be optional.Word of caution: in most western countries, a lot of this information would be considered sensitive and should not be added to your application, especially numbers 7 through 16. And numbers 17 through 20 would look out of place.Pro Tip: You can easily change your indian resume format into a reverse-chronological resume. Start your education and experience section with the latest school you finished and position you held.3. Show Off Your EducationThis section lists your education in chronological order.Make it work to your advantage!Keep it simple, but don't fail to mention coursework and academic achievements relevant to the job on offer.2003—2011Delhi Public School Vasant ViharActivities:Member, Maths Club Class V-VII2011—2015I. Make Sure Your Personal Information Paints a PictureThis section of your matrimonial biodata should offer a taste of things to come.The trick is to say as much as possible, and use as few words as possible.Here are a couple of ideas about what you may want to include:NameAgePhysical features (height, weight)LocationEducationLanguages spokenCommunityHobbiesOther relevant information2. Better yet, include an Actual Picture: a Professional PhotoLet's be honest:It's the photo that does the trick.If the reader isn't able to take their eyes off you—they're likely to stick around a bit longer.And if you choose a passable photo. Well, expect your marriage biodata to be quickly passed over.So, here's some advice for you to consider:Don't have a nice portrait picture? Get a photographer to take one!Don't be tempted to use your smartphone's front-facing camera, and put a ton of filters on your image. This doesn't just look bad, but may also make someone think you've enhanced the image too much. Also, make sure it's a color picture and a recent one. If you had a photo taken 5 years ago—just forget it.Show more than just your face.It doesn't need to be a full shot showing you head to toe. A medium shot (from the waist up), or a head and shoulder shot will do. You might also want to consider using a collage of a couple of types of pictures. Or even add more pictures of you in a separate attachment.Don't use a group photo.Just don't. It's all about you.3. Wow the Reader in the About Me SectionWhen preparing this section of your marriage biodata, you can easily assume that you've sparked the reader's interest.Now, spice things up with some more details about yourself.In general, it's safe to stick to this structure:Appearance and looksEducationProfessional statusHobbies and interestsAdditional info (optional)Here's what a description based on this structure may look like in your biodata for marriage:Matrimonial Profile Sample: About MeI am a curvy, long-legged brunette with a cheerful and optimistic disposition. In 2006 I graduated with an MA in Computer Science from Amrita University. Currently, I work as a Junior Software Engineer with HCL Technologies in Noida.In my spare time, I love to rock climb and take landscape photos. These two activities reflect my adventurous, yet sentimental nature. Plus, both require regular practice, and technical skills.I also love animals, and volunteer at a local dog shelter.Pro Tip: If you have any physical or mental disabilities do not fail to mention them here.4. Show How Proud You Are of Your Family BackgroundIn your marriage biodata, your family is just as important as you are. So make sure you approach this section with care and attention.As a rule, it's good to list information about your immediate family:Father's name and occupationMother's name and occupationSiblings and their occupationsAnd add an extra paragraph or two briefly characterizing your family.It can look something like that:Family Description for Matrimony SampleMy family has been based in New Delhi for well over four decades. My grandparents originally come from Kanpur where they both worked as doctors. My father is a surgeon with over 30 years of experience and my mother is a pediatrician. Both of them work at Indraprastha Apollo Hospital. My older brother is a lawyer and works for Phoenix Legal here in New Delhi.We are a loving family, firmly believe in the value of hard work, and do our best to live our lives to the fullest. We are also avid travellers, keen on exploring new countries.5. Be Clear About Who You're Looking for (Partner Expectations)This section of your biodata is where your reader will see if they stand any chances.Make sure not to skip anything you deem essential in your partner.In fact, it might be a good idea to make a bullet point list of the qualities you're seeking. Then prune it, and leave the ones you couldn't live without.Your list could look something like that:professionally stablefinancially independentInduconfidantrespectfulloves sportslikes to spend time outdoorsanimal lovervegetarianThen put them all together and prepare a short description.I'm at the stage of my career and life where I reached a satisfactory level of experience and self-sufficiency.I'm looking for a professionally stable and financially independent Hindu man, who knows his worth but remains respectful of others. Caste is of no importance.As a sporty person myself, I would like my partner to be physically fit, and willing to spend free time getting outdoors, hiking, climbing, etc.Must love animals, and be a vegetarian.Pro Tip: You're looking for someone you'd like to spend the rest of your life with. Not an easy friend. Give this section all the attention it calls for. And then a bit more.6. Match Up via Horoscope If You're a BelieverHere's the thing:Not everybody believes in horoscope matching.If you don't—you might just want to mention it at the end of the partner expectations section.A short sentence that reads "I don't believe in horoscope matching," will do.But, it's also a good idea to say you're able to provide your horoscope if need be.This way you express your opinion, and remain respectful.If you do believe in horoscope matching, simply add this short section to your marriage biodata.You can stick to this simple format:Date of birth:Place of birth:Time of birth:Rasi:Nakshatra:Plus, a great cover letter that matches your resume will give you an advantage over other candidates. You can write it in our cover letter builder here. Here's what it may look like:See more cover letter templates and start writing.Key takeawaysIn this day and age, a biodata mostly refers to either of these two types of documents:Job biodata format—this could range from a kind of resume, to a list of questions for you to answer:Matrimonial biodata format—a document presenting your matrimonial profile.To make your biodata format for job applicants stand out, you might want it to include:Personal information/Objective / Summary/Education/Experience/Key skills/Biodatas usually present your educational background and professional experience in chronological order:Marriage biodata formats are different.
